About the Author:

Roy F. Weaver is an Eagle Scout, an Air Force Veteran, and a career civil servant. He grew up in the Wisconsin woods, down a gravel and dirt road with no cell phone and no computer, just a tractor, an ax, and a shotgun. His experiences in other countries, including Iraq in 2005, gave him a firsthand view of the human history he studied in public school. His daughter, Hero, who was diagnosed with the same brain cancer as a couple of well-known Politi-Sharks, remains his standard for how we should all stand up for ourselves in a world that demands we submit to those who believe they have a right to reign in dominion over us. He dedicates this story to her.
