There is a unique possibility to use the excellent RepMove technology for great planning of the salesmen activity, their construction and developing of trading efficiency.

This application makes it possible to distribute resources in the trading network as efficiently as possible, improve your indicators of activity of sales representatives, and create a good functioning system in the field of trade. RepMove technology procures a unique opportunity to take into account a lot of impacts when planning a route, developing the sequence of actions of salesmen and their movements.

RepMove is a trouble-free salesman tracking software in trade and business, performing the functions of an entire department in a trading company. Its advantage is the creation of a route when you can accurately calculate the necessary costs, resources, travel time between retail outlets and necessary stops. You are work with the most accurate geographic and spatial data that is possible. The main functionality is the creation of a base for movement - the creation of an individual map of the route of a sales representative, which assumes a holistic vision of his activities, allows him to take into account all possible influences that affect the speed of movement of the employee and can reduce the productivity of his work.

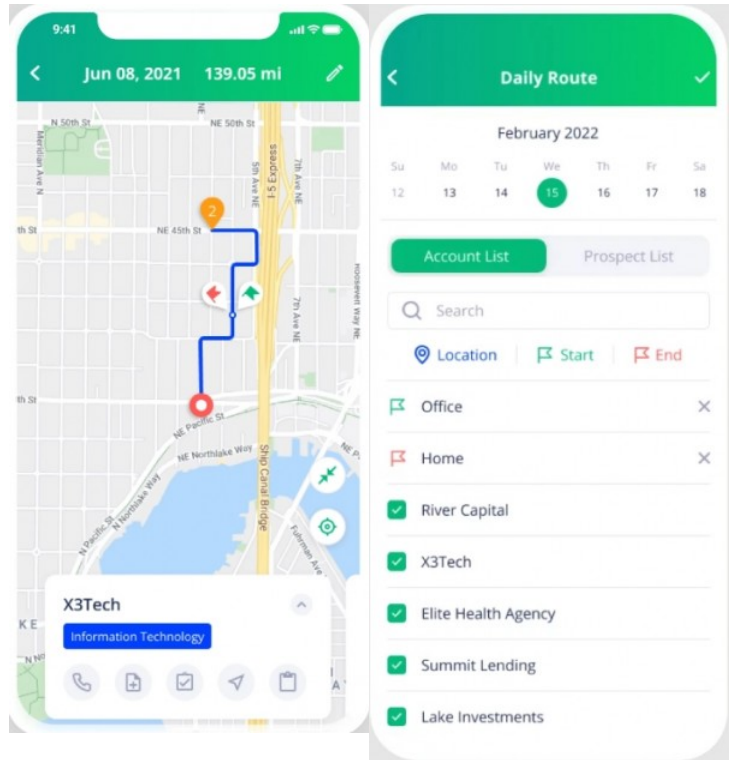

The interactive core of the application allows you to make changes to the activities of employees in the shortest possible time. The entire process of use begins with familiarization with the site, where the client is taken care of in advance, accompanying the entire process of familiarization and use of the technical tool with detailed instructions. Besides, a large amount of support workers are constantly in the interaction process, advising on a wide variety of questions.

Based on the use of the technology, you build a great model of a successful trading functionality, where everything functions as smoothly as possible and every component of the trading set accurately realizes its functions. Another advantage of RepMove as a salesman tracking app is the ability to create a multi-account for employees, when all your sales representatives have a single interactive communication system and constantly enter data about their actions. This will allow you to realize constant monitoring of the productivity or quality of work of your salesmen and make the necessary modifications.

The RepMove technology makes it possible to provide your sales by connecting the system calendar into the technology and creating a schedule of work tasks, constructing a sequence of visiting retail points, and establishing interaction between your employees in one chat.

By visiting the website you will quickly familiarize yourself with the application, install it and be able to productively organize the activities of sales agents.
