indie-rock fills with a creatively refreshing twist of intention, Degrees keeps things striking yet simple, for the anthemic and intriguing presence of ‘A Little to Well’. The fiery soundtrack features raw indie rock energy, live-sounding and gritty in its originality but uncertain and elusive in its vague but hard-hitting poetic verses. In Sweden’s darkest woods, behind all its fur coats, gossip girls and dramas stands an emotive two-man band featuring Mikael Jacobson (The Trick, Late Night Conversations) and Rickard Folke (Boygirlme). The guys met in 2001 and have been friends ever since. The dynamic duo shared the same level of passion and determination for rock music and started crafting together.

The Swedish duo hails from Sweden’s darkest woods and is back after more than 10 years with its new album. With their love for captivating melodies and soft synths, Degrees continue where they left off; epic, poetic melancholy with reveling pop rhythms, enriched with a little drive from the early 80ies Synthpop and modern Shoegaze. Well, the more than three-minute track showcases the rock and roll tone of the presentation and it leads throughout the piercing lyricism. ‘A Little to Well’ captivates audiences with the satisfying tune and unexpected joyful layers that put an intense mood to the theme with the outright energy and uplift the pure rock pace and performance.

Briefly, like in their previous albums, the duo has developed its very own musical cosmos with a certain nostalgic feeling this time with a very modern appearance. The profound creators of the band Degrees captured momentum while fusing genres and connecting for this fine balance between creative freedom and nostalgia. Several music frames such as 'You Don't Know What Love Is', 'Shake Shake Shake Shake', 'Dear Diary', and 'Cloudy Night Like Tonight' have managed to gather the attention and praise of music lovers around the world.
