

SAER Captivates Once Again with a Reflective Christmas Single "This Time of Year"

Unveiling a Heartfelt Single Accompanied by Paul Griffin's Poignant Animation, Available December 1st

Kensington, London Nov 23, 2023 (Issuewire.com) - UK-based vocalist, multi-instrumentalist, and producer SAER is set to release his magical Christmas single, "This Time of Year", on December 1st. Known for his ability to craft human emotion into reflective ballads, SAER is carving a winter narrative that resonates with the solitary echoes of the holiday season.

Following the success of his atmospheric rendition of Johnny Cash's "I Walk the Line", which garnered critical acclaim from Illustrate Magazine for its "unique and haunting interpretation," and Fred Bambridge of 'It's All Indie', who praised SAER for his "dreamy cover" that redefined a classic for modern sensibilities, SAER's newest project promises to deliver an equally mesmerising experience.

Graeme Smith from 'York Calling' highlighted SAER's talents in altering the mood of well-known tracks, noting his "melancholic piano and pleading vocals" that beautifully articulate a sense of isolation - a theme SAER profoundly explores in "This Time of Year".

The single is an emotional ode to the festive period experienced in the absence of a loved one. It reflects the cold realisation of facing Christmas alone, wrapped in a soundscape that mirrors the wintry chill of estrangement. The song's narrative is visually captured by director Paul Griffin bringing to life the tale of a lost snowman seeking a reunion with a long-lost friend, drawing parallels to the heartrending journey of separation and the search for reconnection.

SAER's signature falsetto and evocative musicality, praised as "spine-tinglingly dynamic" by FreshOnTheNet's FreshFaves, breathe hope into the melancholy of winter. His experimental blend of electronic pop and folk, coupled with cinematic sensibilities, forms an evocative soundtrack that invites listeners into a world of introspective Christmas reflection.

This Birmingham-based artist's rise to prominence through appearances on 'The Voice UK' and collaborations with luxury brands like Bentley on Earth Day projects, reflects his growing influence on the music scene. SAER's unique sound, which has been lauded by national radio and original charting artists alike, promises to make "This Time of Year" a new anthem for those resonating with the quieter, more contemplative side of the holiday season.

"This Time of Year" will be available across all major music platforms, marking a chapter of SAER's ongoing musical journey that fans and new listeners alike can embrace during the year's closing chapter.
