

Twanguero presents his new cumbia, a Latin Twang with Cali vibes

New single, 'La Cumbia sin nombre,' now available on digital platforms

Los Angeles, California Jan 23, 2024 (Issuewire.com) - Always true to his instrumental roots, Twanguero introduces a new single inspired by a central concept: 'Panamérica': a Cumbia fusing North American influences from the 50s with Peruvian Chicha hints and Western imagery. A comeback to his electric sound & to the collective work for Twanguero, after his last album was recorded solo & acoustic in the Costa Rican jungle.

“La Cumbia sin nombre” also comes as a foretaste of more upcoming music the artist has been working on over the past couple of years. He is currently premiering part of it in Spain (Burgos, Madrid, Valencia, and Barcelona) and US dates are being scheduled.

ABOUT 'LA CUMBIA SIN NOMBRE' BY TWANGUERO

I started writing this cumbia on the water a couple of years ago. This 'world on hold' imposed by the pandemic gave us good grounds and time for creation. I remember listening to a lot of music, looking for inspiration beyond ages and spaces. In a way, I was trying to escape my confined routine. One day, I had the melody in mind, we got together with Moises and started shaping some structure and rhythms, but we still felt it lacked something, some sort of gimmick. We could not give it a name either and it remained unfinished on a shelf for a while. Fast forward to September 2023, I reconnected with the track in my studio. There, I added keys, percussion, re-recorded my guitars and finally got what I was hoping for. I called Moises to tell him we had to retake “this cumbia with no name”. And so it went, and stayed, “La Cumbia sin nombre”.
