

Introducing Eric Valdespino's New Sci-Fi Masterpiece "Raising Edwin" at the 2024 London Book Fair

Henderson, Nevada Feb 20, 2024 (Issuewire.com) - In this generation where people seek success beyond measure, it is common to feel an endless void despite all the efforts exerted and achievements earned.

Margret Stewart is one of those individuals who proved their potential to excel in their chosen field. At the tender age of fifteen, Margret became his father's assistant and helped in growing their construction company. Over the years, she honed her skills and quickly became one of the key people in the business.

"Yet amidst her professional success . . . Margret felt an unfulfilled maternal longing, yearning to welcome a child into her life."

— Eric Valdespino, Raising Edwin

Despite all the success, she secretly envies her sister. Carol, her sister, is happily married and has a loving family of her own — the thing that Margret won't achieve in spite of the professional success and financial security she possesses. To fill the void, Margret asked her chauffeur, Jim, to search for a woman who is willing to sell her unborn child with the sole condition that the child must be born healthy.

Jim poured all the time and effort to find the perfect woman for this arrangement, he then stumbled upon Amber Winston and everything went according to their agreement. Little did they know, the child's father is an entity far from human beings — the last kind of a soon-to-be extinct extraterrestrial being.

How will this affect Margret and her longing to build a family of her own? Will she despise Amber for not telling the truth? What will happen to the child?

Don't fret! We know you have a lot of questions in mind and all will be answered in the upcoming London Book Fair this March 12-14, 2024 at Olympia London. So, what are you waiting for? Visit Authors Press' booth at the 2024 London Book Fair and grab a copy of Eric Valdespino's Raising Edwin.
