SkyStem, a NASBA-certified provider, hosts captivating webinars that leave their attendees coming back for more. We offer webinars on topics ranging from internal controls over financial reporting, to month-end close infrastructure, to Finance tone at the top.

The unique delivery of the topics is one thing that has SkyStem at the top of the webinar world, but so is the amazing host, Nancy Wu. Ms. Wu currently leads sales and customer success for SkyStem but has spent a lot of her career working in consulting and auditing various accounting departments' financial close processes for public and private organizations.

Her published work around leveraging user behavior to design internal controls is archived in the Cornell University Library. Ms. Wu is also the author of a whitepaper that discusses management standards around the balance sheet reconciliation process.

With tens of thousands of certificates issued, SkyStem does not plan on slowing down anytime soon and continues to consistently put on captivating and interesting webinars for its ever-growing audience. We celebrate this accomplishment as a testament to our ongoing mission to elevate education and be a part of the continuing education needs of many.
