Understanding the ADGM Business Setup Process

The ADGM business setup process consists of several key steps that need to be followed. Firstly, business owners need to decide on the type of entity they want to establish in ADGM. There are various options available, including a limited liability company (LLC), a branch office, or a representative office. Each entity type has its requirements and benefits, so it's important to choose the one that aligns with your business goals.

Once the entity type is chosen, business owners need to fulfill the ADGM company setup requirements. These requirements include submitting the necessary documents, such as a business plan, a memorandum and articles of association, and proof of capital. Business owners also need to undergo a thorough background check to ensure they meet the eligibility criteria set by ADGM.

ADGM Formation Process

The ADGM formation process involves several stages that need to be completed. Firstly, business owners need to reserve a company name for their entity. This step ensures that the chosen name is unique and not already registered by another company. Once the name is reserved, business owners can proceed with the company interaction process.

During the interaction process, business owners need to submit the required documents to the ADGM Registration Authority. These documents include the memorandum and articles of association, the company's capital structure, and the details of the company's shareholders and directors. Once the documents are reviewed and approved, a Certificate of interaction will be issued, officially establishing the company in ADGM.
