

Alexios Apazidis, MD, FAAOS, Leading Orthopedic and Spinal Surgeon in New York City and Long Island

Providing Expert Orthopedic and Spinal Care with Compassion and Precision

New York City, New York May 28, 2024 (IssueWire.com) - Dr. Apazidis, a board-certified orthopedic and spinal surgeon, brings over 15 years of expertise to his private practice. Currently serving patients across multiple locations in New York City and Long Island, he performs intricate surgical procedures at renowned hospitals affiliated with Catholic Health System, Northwell Health, Carepoint Health, Robert Wood Johnson Barnabas Health, and Hudson Regional Hospital. His licensure extends to New Jersey and Florida, enabling him to cater to a wide range of national and international patients.

Dedicated to empowering his patients by providing comprehensive education on treatment options and surgical procedures, he specializes in minimally invasive spinal surgeries that facilitate rapid recovery and superior outcomes. His primary focus lies in restoring patients' health and mobility, ultimately enabling them to lead pain-free lives. Witnessing his patients express eagerness to resume work and physical activities post-treatment brings him immense satisfaction, as it signifies the successful culmination of his efforts.

His academic journey is equally impressive, with fellowships and residencies from esteemed institutions like NYU Grossman School of Medicine and Rutgers New Jersey Medical School. Before that he graduated with an honors thesis on novel signaling pathways in neurons from Harvard University, while also simultaneously attending M.I.T. and earning his M.S. His impressive educational background, coupled with an MBA in Marketing from the Boston University School of Management, underscores his multifaceted expertise in the medical and healthcare arena.

An expert in his field, his Diplomate status at the American Board of Orthopaedic Surgeons serves as a testament to his exemplary standards of care. He has maintained this status by participating in the recertification process. Moreover, his commitment to education extends beyond patient care, as he actively participates in training orthopedic residents as faculty at Nassau University Medical Center and continues to conduct clinical research and publish articles in prestigious peer-reviewed journals such as The Spine Journal.

With an unwavering commitment to staying abreast of the latest advancements in surgical techniques, Dr. Apazidis is actively engaged in various professional societies, holding a prestigious Fellowship in the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons (FAAOS). His memberships in esteemed organizations such as the American Medical Association, North American Spine Society, New York State Medical Society, and Suffolk County Medical Society reflect his commitment to enhancing his skills and knowledge in the field.

When asked about the secret to his success, he attributes it to his unwavering dedication to keeping up with the best modern surgical techniques, coupled with a deep understanding of his patients' sensitivities, goals, and circumstances.
