

Public Health Graduate and Lactation Consultant, Mattea Clarke, Brings Expertise in Maternal and Child Health

Mattea, an IBCLC Licensed Professional, Combines Research and Patient Care to Drive Health Interventions

New York City, New York Jun 5, 2024 (Issuewire.com) - Mattea, a Master of Public Health graduate from the UNC Gillings School of Global Public Health, specializing in Maternal and Child Health, and an International Board Certified Lactation Consultant (IBCLC), is making significant strides in healthcare delivery at HCA Healthcare in Savannah, Georgia.

With a strong foundation in both qualitative and quantitative research, she brings a unique perspective to her role, leveraging data-driven insights to implement impactful programs that improve patient outcomes. Her diverse background spans over four years in healthcare management, clinical research, and patient care, showcasing her commitment to promoting health and wellness in the community.

Mattea's approach is defined by her compassionate relations and high-energy, can-do attitude, qualities that have been instrumental in her previous roles as a research coordinator and in postoperative care improvement. Her expertise in health interventions is evident in her work as an Advocacy Intern under Government Relations at the American Heart Association, where she successfully strategized and executed healthy solutions for children in Los Angeles County.

During her tenure at the University of North Carolina Chapel Hill (UNC-CH), Mattea honed her skills in Maternal Child Health, with a particular emphasis on birth and postpartum care. She delved into areas such as midwifery practices, infant nutrition, and the postpartum experience, preparing herself to make a meaningful impact in the lives of mothers and children.

She is dedicated to offering comprehensive and compassionate lactation support to families of all backgrounds, helping them navigate the complexities of the postpartum period with confidence and empowerment.

In her role at HCA Healthcare, Mattea continues to drive positive change through her innovative approach to healthcare delivery. Her holistic understanding of public health, coupled with her hands-on experience in patient care, positions her as a valuable asset in advancing the health and wellness of individuals in Savannah, Georgia, and beyond.
