

Science on Climate Guard, ALLATRA Presented a Report to the Pope

"Vatican: ALLATRA President presents a report on the climate crisis to Pope Francis and discusses solutions with leading scientists worldwide."

New York City, New York Jul 1, 2024 (Issuewire.com) - On June 22, 2024, at the Apostolic Palace in Vatican City, the President of the International Public Movement ALLATRA, Marina Ovtsinova, presented Pope Francis and esteemed guests of the conference with a climate report titled "On The Progression Of Climatic Disasters On Earth And Their Catastrophic Consequences."

The conference was organized by the Centesimus Annus Pro Pontifice Foundation (CAPP), which operates under the Secretariat of State of the Holy See. This fund is headed by Dr. Anna Maria Tarantola.

It should be noted that the President of ALLATRA had a private conversation with Pope Francis. During this private conversation with His Holiness, she raised the issue of climate change as a global problem for all humanity.

The conference in the Vatican was held in a small circle. Selected scientists and experts from various countries were present at the private reception. The three-day international conference was titled "Generative Artificial Intelligence and the Technocratic Paradigm."

It is worth noting that ALLATRA volunteers and scientists have been working for many years on cutting-edge innovations and technological devices that can save humanity from the climate threat.

As the esteemed Egon Cholakian said: "These are just a few facts that testify to their (ALLATRA's) advanced capabilities. Allow me to give one example: 10 years ago, ALLATRA made their discovery public, according to which the increase in the flow of endogenous neutrinos from the Earth's core is a harbinger of seismic activity. This discovery was made based on field research conducted using portable neutrino detectors developed by ALLATRA researchers themselves. Notably, these portable detectors can be carried by one person, which is incomparable to our modern bulky neutrino observatories that require large buildings and laboratories. Only recently has modern science confirmed that the surge in the neutrino flux from the Earth's interior is indeed intensifying in some local areas, serving as a harbinger of impending earthquakes. ALLATRA scientists were ahead of all scientific communities in the world by a decade.

Only years later did we arrive at the same conclusions that they reached long before us. Their achievements in scientific discoveries have significantly surpassed our scientific research."

But let's return to the Vatican. In his opinion, the fact that the conference in Vatican City was specifically focused on technological developments is very significant. ALLATRA scientists have been saying for decades that it is necessary to unite scientists into a single scientific international center to find technological solutions on how to protect the planet from climate, in particular from external space impacts.

Since the future of humanity will be played out on the front of technological innovation, Pope Francis stated, "We must not miss the opportunity to think and act in a new way, with mind, heart, and hands," in order to "direct innovation toward a configuration centred on the primacy of human dignity."
