Suge Knight Lawsuit Against The DaBaby

Los Angeles, California Jul 1, 2024 (IssueWire.com) - Trap R Die Records: Vice President - Suge Knight Pathway To Lawsuit Against DaBaby/Interscope Records/Reel Goats Productions/South Coast Music Group

"Simon Says Lawsuit": Baby on Baby Track - "SUGE" - Released: April 23, 2019

The title of this booming song references Marion "Suge" Knight, the imposing founder of the defunct Death Row Records.

I'm a young CEO, Suge
Yeah, yeah

Suge Knight became the CEO of Death Row in 1991 when he was just 26 years old. During the 1990s Death Row dominated the rap charts with its roster of artists, which included Dr. Dre, Tupac Shakur, and Snoop Dogg. Much like Knight, DaBaby is a young CEO of a record label. In 2017, he founded Billion Dollar Baby whose first signing was frequent collaborator Stunna4Vegas.

The rest of the song finds DaBaby free-associating about a litany of topics including smelling good ("She like how I smell, cologne"), "threatening haters" ("You disrespect me and I'll beat your ass up"), and boasts about his riches ("Got like thirty-two thousand in one of my pockets"). He even talks about being a mailman ("Pack in the mail, it's gone")

Filmed with DaBaby's production team, the Reel Goats, the lighthearted video pokes fun at Suge Knight's harsh reputation as the Charlotte rapper plays a label boss. Da Baby also uses the line "pack in the mail" to become a postman.

The office scene was filmed at DaBaby's real office, which he rents in Charlotte.

Potential Lawsuit Key Points -

1. Suge Knight plea deal Sep. 20, 2018...

"Suffered Financial Damages Due From Song & Use Of Negative Likeness"

2. (Defamation Character & Damages To Reputation) Interscope Records/South Coast Music Group

Jonathan Kirk is a rapper from Charlotte, North Carolina who records under the name of DaBaby. Following the success of his Baby Talk mixtape series, he signed with Interscope Records in 2019. This track from the rapper's debut studio album Baby on Baby is his breakout hit...

While this theoretical lawsuit is pondering; Trap R Die Records is preparing its first major release:
