"I have to find the magical in the mundane," reveals Gio in our interview. While Gio focuses on improving his appearance online from a musical aspect, he's fascinated by how his fans get pleased by minor things like taking his shirt off.

Although making sure his posts are always at the top of their game can be challenging most of the time, Gio loves its freedom, he reveals. While other artists invest in needles and surgeries to look fit, Gio sips on a healthy beverage and an all-green diet to keep in shape. Perhaps the actual motto is to post a picture with his shirt off, but Gio wants to "promote a healthy lifestyle to everyone," no matter the methodology applied.

What fascinates Gio the most is how the plans he puts the most effort in, receive the same enthusiasm as a story of him eating a kale salad does. Gio likes keeping his fans updated, so even if he posts something as minor as picking up a fork, his fans respond with 'oh, yeah, baby!' It's crazy how unpredictable social media is and how enthusiastic fan reactions can get, even on the trivial things that no one expected.

That's what keeps Gio inspired to do his own thing. Being an influencer has enabled him to keep doing what he loves without any limitations. Gio gets to be his authentic self and gets praised by his fans for the tiniest things he does. Imagine yourself posting a story of green beans, and the next thing that happens is your inbox is brimming with fans energetically reacting with 'Yas! Go, green baby!' Yup, welcome to Gio's life. Although it may sound all fun and games, Gio had to face multiple challenges before coming to the point where he could receive all the love, enthusiasm, and energy.

Being able to reach a whopping 100k followers and keeping them engaged is something that didn't come to Gio easily. It can be explicitly noticed by looking at Gio's posts how his TikTok game plan has improved over time. From posting baby Gio videos that didn't receive any response to getting wild feedback on stories of his fitness tutorials, Gio indeed came a long way!

"I had the vision, but not the execution," says Gio, while talking about how he learned Instagram algorithms, psychology, and reality T.V. to craft himself. Hence, Gio feels accomplished knowing every single follower is a result of his hard work and diligence.

Receiving an overwhelming amount of following does not blind Gio to life's morals and values. When pursuing brand partnerships, Gio determines whether he should proceed with them or not by asking himself a few questions. "Is it good? Is it sustainable? And will it make the world a better place? So if it checks all those boxes, I'm like, okay, sign me up. That's pretty much it. Cut and dry."

Gio's personality has enabled him to not take anything for granted. He is always grateful for the overwhelming support he has received from strangers online. "I'm always endlessly surprised by how supportive strangers are," reveals Gio in an interview.

All in all, there is a reason why Gio has a following of over 100k followers already and growing. It is a testament to his magnetic personality, charisma, and good looks. Although it is too soon to call, it is safe to say that Gio has a bright future not just as a musician but also as a social media celebrity. Gio is a complete package, and if you haven't already, go check him out!
