Debate of organic growth vs paid promotions for your YouTube channel?

Millions of videos are being uploaded every day on YouTube. With higher penetration of mobile devices and low cost internet, it has now become much easier for every person to shoot and upload a new video. With every new update organic reach of new channels is getting limited and it is becoming increasingly tough for new YouTubers to reach newer audiences organically. Along with this, they have to also be UpToDate with effective SEO practices, consistent posting schedules, and engaging with your audience. However, with the sheer volume of content being uploaded on YouTube every minute, standing out and gaining traction can take very much time and effort.

The Importance of Paid Reach

Paid YouTube campaigns if done right can significantly amplify your efforts, ensuring that your content gets seen by a broader, targeted audience. By leveraging paid promotions, you can bypass some of the time-consuming aspects of organic growth, quickly boosting your visibility and engagement rates from your targeted audience. Paid reach is especially crucial for new channels looking to establish a foothold or for existing channels aiming to scale their growth more rapidly. However, you have to be very cautious on choosing your partner for paid YouTube promotions. Ensure your partner complies with YouTube terms and policies by becoming an official YouTube partner. Flintzy is your best choice for promoting your YouTube channels and videos. Flintzy is an official Google partner and complies with all YouTube policies.

Flintzy Success reviews

When Shelli reached out to us a few months ago, her channel had 4,070 subscribers.

Fast forward to today: her channel boasts 133,000 subscribers and a "verified" badge.

What changed? Her decision to choose Flintzy.

Shelli wanted to break into the Style, Beauty & Wellness industry but grew frustrated with the lack of engagement despite her efforts. She wasn't alone—many content creators face the same challenge. Often, it's not the content that's the problem, but the fact that the target audience never sees it.

Without views, YouTube won't organically promote your video. Shelli's target audience didn't know she existed—until we stepped in and placed her channel directly in front of them.

Want to know what happened next?

The same channel that wasn't getting any views and engagement surpassed 100k subscribers in a few months.

YouTube success is easier than you think when you have the right strategy. Don't battle the odds—show your video to the right people.

Your target audience is waiting for you!
