

IRS Officer Bharti Singh's Bhopal NGO Honored with Government of India's Excellence in Public Service Award

IRS officer Bharti Singh's Bhopal NGO, focused on empowering underprivileged students through education, has been honoured with the Government of India's prestigious Excellence in Public Service award.

Bhopal, Madhya Pradesh Sep 4, 2024 (IssueWire.com) - IRS officer Bharti Singh's Bhopal NGO, focused on empowering underprivileged students through education, has been honoured with the Government of India's prestigious Excellence in Public Service award. The NGO provides financial support and career guidance, helping students from disadvantaged backgrounds achieve their educational goals.

In the heart of Bhopal, a transformative initiative is quietly making a significant difference in the lives of underprivileged students, offering them a pathway out of poverty through the power of education. This commendable effort is spearheaded by Bharti Singh, a senior IRS officer and the current Commissioner of Bhopal. Her dedication to social service and belief in the power of education have culminated in an impactful project that is changing the lives of many young people from economically disadvantaged backgrounds.

Bharti Singh's outstanding contributions have not gone unnoticed. She was recently honored with the Government of India's prestigious Excellence in Public Service award, a recognition that underscores the importance and impact of her work. Singh, along with her husband, Dr. Geetendra Singh (CEO - Biomentors Online), co-founded the NGO in 2010 with a clear mission: to leverage education as a catalyst for social change. Their vision was to provide students from the most humble backgrounds with the opportunities they needed to pursue higher education and ultimately, a better future.

Over the last five years, the NGO has allocated more than ₹56.67 lakh to assist over 100 students with their MBBS fees and other related educational expenses. These students, many of whom come from families with annual incomes below ₹1.2 lakh, are now able to access higher education opportunities that were once beyond their reach. The financial support provided by the NGO is not just about covering costs; it's about giving these students a chance to break free from the cycle of poverty and to realize their dreams.

But the NGO's impact doesn't stop at financial assistance. Recognizing that early guidance is crucial in shaping a student's future, the organization runs comprehensive career guidance programs across government schools and universities in Madhya Pradesh. These programs target students from classes 8th to 12th, providing them with critical insights and preparation strategies for competitive exams such as NEET, IIT-JEE, and UPSC. The NGO also introduces students to affordable online educational resources, which allow them to prepare for these exams without the burden of expensive coaching fees. This approach ensures that even students from the most disadvantaged backgrounds have a fair shot at success in highly competitive fields.

In addition to career guidance, the NGO has partnered with a few banks to facilitate education loans for students who might otherwise be unable to finance their studies. This collaboration is vital in ensuring that financial constraints do not prevent deserving students from pursuing their academic goals. By providing both financial support and access to loans, the NGO enables students to complete their education and launch themselves into successful careers.

The impact of Bharti Singh's work is profound. Her NGO is not only changing individual lives but also contributing to the broader goal of building a more equitable society. The recognition of her efforts with the Government of India's Excellence in Public Service award highlights the critical role that targeted support and guidance can play in empowering the next generation.

Bharti Singh's initiative is a shining example of how education can be a powerful force for change. By equipping students with the tools and resources they need to succeed, she and her team are helping to reshape the future of countless families. The work being done by the NGO serves as a reminder that with the right support, every child, regardless of their background, has the potential to achieve greatness. The recognition from the Government of India further validates the importance of such initiatives in driving social progress and creating a brighter, more equitable future for all.

Media Contact

BHARTI Society

gskgeetendra@rediffmail.com

Source : Biomentors Health And Rural Tareget Initiatives Society - NGO

See on IssueWire

