

Magnolia Butch Gets Real About Making Peace in "Sweet Dreams" Music Video

New Orleans' musical maverick, Magnolia Butch (aka Abie Oliver), is dropping his next music video for his single "Sweet Dreams" that'll have you dreaming of a better world.

Los Angeles, California Sep 15, 2024 (Issuewire.com) - Ditch the negativity and fluffy lullabies - this ain't your grandma's bedtime story. "Sweet Dreams" is a powerful anthem with a message that hits harder than a dream catcher: Imagine a world built on kindness, without violence.

Inspired by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s iconic dream speech, Magnolia Butch weaves his lyrics together, once again, posing the question we all ponder: What can we do differently that will lead to a better outcome?

The video's a mashup of Magnolia Butch's signature sound and stunning visuals that'll leave you believing in the possibilities. It's more than a song; it's a call for change, urging us to dream of a future free from conflict and the hope for a new beginning.

Want to be part of the dream? Check out Magnolia Butch's "Sweet Dreams" music video dropping on September 22, 2024.
