Stagnant water in such tanks offers ideal breeding grounds for bacteria, fungi, and algae; health hazards exist if such a situation continues to persist. It is important to clean such water tanks regularly to eliminate such hazards and ensure that the water kept within the tanks will remain safe for everyday use.

Lastly, high-pressure jet washing is done to remove all the residue.

In the purification of water tanks, Plus Point Cleaning uses environmentally friendly and non-toxic cleaning agents to ensure that the whole process is harmless to the environment and humans.
