The Optima product line is a recent release from the Korean WZBIO brand. It's available worldwide now, providing options for nourishing and protecting the cells of the human body in various ways. Designed to be used on a daily basis, products in the lineup include the following three items:

Optima Immune

This immune-supporting product is comprised of 19 different multivitamins and minerals that support the daily function of our immune system. Flavonoids, gooseberry extract, organic fruits, and organic vegetables complete this well-rounded product. It has the potential to help you achieve more energy, support proper bone density, increase muscle strength, and support brain function. Antioxidants in this product help your immune system function throughout the cold and flu season and beyond. You'll find that this product contains more ingredients than your typical vitamin supplement. Optima has considered all the processes of your body, supporting each and every one.

Optima Vital

Supporting the liver is a great way to focus on whole-body health. Vital contains natural milk thistle and vitamins that not only support liver function, but it also helps to reduce stress. Stress can have a very negative impact on our bodies over a short period of time, leading to sluggish liver function, inflammation, and much more. Not many people realize how sick the body can become when ongoing stress is experienced without properly being dealt with. Over time, the body can become stuck in a fight or flight response that taxes the nervous system, our adrenals, etc.

Milk thistle has been used for centuries to manage stress and to support organs such as the kidneys, liver, and gallbladder. This ingredient can protect the body from toxins that we encounter each day, from things in our environment as well as foods that are in our diet. Milk thistle may also have anti-cancer effects and can support cellular growth within the liver, which is very regenerative and beneficial.

Optima Skincare

You can use the top selling Skincare supplement from WZBIO to improve the health and vitality of your skin, thanks to ingredients such as collagen peptides and biotin. The human body is able to produce collagen naturally, but this product decreases as we age. Over the age of 30, most of us are deficient in collagen, leading to the development of wrinkles, sagging, etc. Rather than just applying something topically, Skincare addresses the problem from the inside out. Collagen is also present in our tendons, ligaments, bones, and muscles. Without support from a high-quality supplement, we will experience reduced strength and elasticity. This is a daily supplement that can show improvement in a short amount of time.

Biotin, or B7, strengthens the hair, skin, and nails. Daily use often allows people to see increased growth in addition to supporting eye health, the liver, and nervous system functioning. This important vitamin even supports the body's natural ability to process sugars, fat, and protein.

The Benefits of the Korean Health Industry

There is a great deal of knowledge that comes from the Korean healthcare industry, providing us with herbal practices, ideal extraction techniques, and manufacturing processes that consider how the human body functions. Because of the research and high-quality ingredients that are utilized by WZBIO, they have created a stellar reputation. People all over the world are experiencing benefits from the Optima line, including increased energy, mental clarity, performance, etc. This is an excellent option for people looking to take their health into their own hands without the use of extreme diets, prescription medication, etc.

Focusing on “Your health elevated,” WZBIO’s products have gained a great deal of popularity on an international level, achieving significant sales in Korea and beyond. WZBIO's approach to health management through its Optima line is now making waves on the global stage.
