Understanding Divorce in Florida

Florida is a “no-fault” divorce state, meaning you don’t need to prove wrongdoing like infidelity or abandonment to file for divorce. The only requirement is to demonstrate that the marriage is irretrievably broken. This makes it simpler for couples who agree on key issues to expedite the process. However, even with this straightforward legal framework, navigating paperwork and deadlines can still be a challenge, especially for those unfamiliar with legal jargon.

That’s where My Simple Divorce Online comes in. We specialize in helping couples achieve a quick divorce in Florida, ensuring the process is affordable and hassle-free.

What Is a Quick Divorce?

A quick divorce, also known as an uncontested divorce, is when both parties agree on all major issues, such as property division, child custody, and alimony. Since there are no disputes to resolve, the divorce can proceed smoothly, often taking just 30-90 days to finalize in Florida. This is significantly faster than contested divorces, which can drag on for months or even years.

My Simple Divorce Online offers tailored services to guide you through this process. With our user-friendly online platform, you can complete the necessary forms, avoid costly lawyer fees, and submit your paperwork with confidence.
