

SafeLane Healthcare Is Now a Registered NDIS Provider for Disability Support

Melbourne, Australia Nov 14, 2024 (IssueWire.com) - Australia's National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS) currently supports over 661,267 participants nationwide, offering essential services to individuals with disabilities (Source: ndis.gov.au). This extensive program is powered by a diverse workforce of physiotherapists, support workers, speech therapists, and drivers dedicated to helping participants lead more independent lives.

While the scheme includes a large number of providers across Australia, only a select few have earned official NDIS registration. SafeLane Healthcare has now proudly joined this exclusive group, becoming a registered NDIS provider. As a registered provider, SafeLane Healthcare is authorised to deliver approved services and support, further strengthening its commitment to high-quality care and assistance for Australians with disabilities.

"Becoming a registered NDIS provider is a new chapter for SafeLane Healthcare. We're here to provide personalised care that brings joy, independence, and opportunity to people with disabilities. Together, we're building a community where everyone can reach their full potential." — Shiladitya Ghosh, Director at SafeLane Healthcare

SafeLane Healthcare founded a few years ago, is dedicated to providing top-quality healthcare for people with disabilities, ensuring they get the specialised care they need.
