By leveraging our structured financing expertise, the investor was able to unlock capital while retaining their stock and maintaining market stability.

The Challenge

The client, a significant shareholder in a listed entity on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange, required liquidity but was not willing to sell their shares due to long-term investment goals and the risk of impacting the stock price. They sought a financing solution that would allow them to access cash while retaining ownership of their equity.

The Solution

Our team worked closely with its trusted financial partner to structure a tailored lending facility based on the stock's liquidity. Key features of the solution included:

- Loan-to-Value Ratio: The investor secured a loan for 65% of the stock's value, amounting to $1,625,000.
- Interest Rate: The facility was structured at a competitive rate of 7% per annum.
- Tranche-Based Payouts: Loan funds were released weekly, capped at 30 times the stock's daily dollar volume, ensuring no disruption to market liquidity.
- Tenure: A 3-year loan term, offering the client flexibility for long-term financial planning.

Within three weeks, the investor successfully deposited their shares and accessed the funds, aligning with their cash flow requirements and preserving the integrity of their portfolio.

The Outcome

This bespoke financing solution allowed the shareholder to access capital without liquidating their position or triggering market volatility. By using the stock as collateral, the client retained ownership and benefitted from any potential upside in the stock's value during the loan period.

"This case is a perfect example of how SharesLiquidity.com can craft solutions that align
