A shield on your confidential data

They collect your personal and financial information when you hire them. However, all this data is kept confidential. Using strategies for extra protection and seeing your data as theirs handled it with care. Ensuring that it is protected from all spam is their core aim.

How do they support you in publication?

When you choose them, they will help you from the start till the end and stay in touch with you.

Help in selecting the journal

You have written the content. It is not necessary that your writing be passed off to the journal. The content must match the journal criteria. Therefore, they help in avoiding rejections that are caused by a mismatch between your thesis and journal scope. Improve your chances of being accepted by the best target journals on their recommendation. Believe the journal selected by them will align with your publication goals.

Peer review before submission

Their team is blessed to have experts who act as viewers for the journals. Their unique skill allows them to view the paper from different perspectives, assess them, and help resolve issues at the initial stage. This is a vital step in minimizing the risk of facing rejection.

Checking for plagiarism

They make use of advanced tools to check if the written thesis is 100% plagiarism-free. They even ensure that it is not partially plagiarized so that unintentional plagiarism does not make your paper face rejection. Adding on the team guides you on avoiding repetitions.

Substantive editing

The members of the team editor refine arguments, enhance the quality of the content, and organize the file. However, they make sure that the voice of the author is retained till the end of the document.

Editing artwork and formatting

The graphic designer team has access to the latest graphical software. They use them to edit your graphs and images. They ensure that the color choice is perfect and that the picture resolution, size, and format align with the journal's requirements.

Finally the submission of the journal

Finally, the submission of the journal is part of the job. Their professionals handle the manuscript submission process and make sure that all the demands set by the selected journal are met. If any loopholes are found at the time of submission, they are fixed on the spot to avoid returning the paper.
