

Margaret M. Hanley, MSN, BSN, RN: Excellence in Emergency Nursing at Johns Hopkins Howard County Medical Center

Transforming Emergency Care with Expertise, Dedication, and Compassion

New York City, New York Feb 14, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - Margaret M. Hanley, MSN, BSN, RN, stands out as a dedicated Emergency Room Nurse at Johns Hopkins Howard County Medical Center, a 225-bed, not-for-profit healthcare provider located in Columbia, Maryland. With an illustrious career marked by commitment, leadership, and a passion for patient care, Margaret is a shining example of nursing excellence in action.

Her academic journey began at The Catholic University of America, where she earned her Bachelor of Science in Nursing in 2002. This foundational education paved the way for her advanced studies, culminating in a Master of Science in Nursing with a focus on Leadership and Management from Grand Canyon University in 2015. During this time, Margaret honed vital skills in action planning, nursing documentation, and communication, further enhancing her ability to provide exceptional care in fast-paced environments.

In her quest for knowledge and leadership proficiency, Margaret undertook a specialized program in Organizational Leadership and Executive Nurse Leadership at The Wharton School, in collaboration with MedStar Health and The McChrystal Group, from 2017 to 2018. This experience enriched her executive leadership capabilities and prepared her to tackle the challenges of modern healthcare with confidence.

Margaret's diverse background spans various nursing roles, including Pediatric Registered Nurse and Charge Nurse in Maternal Newborn and Women's Surgical units. Her experience as the Emergency Department Charge Nurse and Hospital House Administrator/Supervisor has equipped her with a comprehensive understanding of hospital operations, patient care, and team dynamics. Additionally, her role as a Pediatric Liaison showcases her versatility and dedication to children's health.

An active member of several professional organizations, including the American Nurses Association, the Emergency Nurses Association, the Society of Pediatric Nurses, and the American Organization for Nursing Leadership, Margaret recognizes the importance of community and collaboration in nursing. She credits much of her success to her mentor, who has played a pivotal role in her professional development. Her intrinsic motivation, commitment to ongoing education, and unwavering passion for assisting others drive her career forward.

Margaret M. Hanley is not just a healthcare provider; she embodies the essence of compassion, skill, and leadership in nursing. As she continues to seek opportunities for growth, she inspires those around her, reinforcing the vital role of nurses in our healthcare system.
