

Martin Moszkowicz, 66, one of Germany's most successful film producers is facing fraud allegations

A film which was produced by the producer in 1983 is now questioning the German film industry, who decorated Moszkowicz, already with prices

Cologne / Köln, North Rhine-Westphalia Mar 19, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - Martin Moszkowicz, 66, the Founder of the German STARFILM PRODUKTION, grandson of Armin Dadieu, 1901 - 1978, who became known as the “worst Nazi in the city of Graz, Austria, is in deep need of an honest Explanation. According to statements, allegations and accusations backed up by evidence, the successful, internationally renowned film producer of recent decades is now facing allegations of fraud, exploitation, abuse of power, bullying, defamation of character and embezzlement. As the prominent actor and artist Mark Bellinghaus-Raubal, ("The Name Of The Rose" and other films), claims in his court criminal complaint, he allegedly renamed his movie "SCHULMÄDCHEN'84" (SCHOOLGIRLS'84), at least five times after its premiere and pocketed the proceeds of this decades-long fraud in his own pocket. According to lead plaintiff Mark Bellinghaus-Raubal, who has been waiting 42 years for his acting & modeling salary, this amounted to the deliberate exploitation of an entire film crew. Bellinghaus-Raubal is also on every poster, record and Merchandising with no pay whatsoever received: “None of us, the employees received a single payment. An indictment for a world-renowned executive producer!” Mark Bellinghaus-Raubal, who is also a successful freelance investigative journalist, recognized, uncovered and stopped the largest exhibition fraud to date in the USA, in 2005. He is therefore featured in 3 different LOS ANGELES TIMES articles on the subject of fraud and Marilyn Monroe. When he published the fraud subject in his first blog and thus brought the exhibition "Marilyn Monroe - the exhibit" into disrepute, he was sued by CMG Worldwide founder and attorney Mark Roesler for 100 million dollars. But the activist against child abuse defended himself in court - and won, together with Jennifer Jean Dickinson, because both were able to prove the biggest exhibition fraud in history. Bellinghaus-Raubal now intends to file a class action lawsuit against Martin Moszkowicz and hopes that at least 50 people (the minimum number of participants in Germany) will join this internationally unique film business fraud scandal. From Martin Moszkowicz' side, nothing could be heard about the accusations so far. On 13. January 2025, Mark Bellinghaus-Raubal already filed a complaint with the public prosecutor's office in Münster. He also submitted a statutory declaration. The actor, who according to his statement has not received a single cent from Martin Moszkowicz to date, expects that the case of Jost Vocado, 90, the cameraman of the German Oscar-winning film "The Boat", 1981, who successfully sued BAVARIA FILM AG, for payment of damages and won several times, will result in the statute of limitations becoming inadmissible and proceedings being initiated against Martin Moszkowicz. It can be assumed that the public will react with great interest to the case of Mark Bellinghaus-Raubal vs. Martin Moszkowicz, because since the case of Harvey Weinstein, 72, who has been behind bars in the USA since the year 2020 for his #metoo crimes and abuse of power, the worldwide film and television industry, in particular, has become very sensitive to similar criminal allegations such as fraud, mobbing etc. Especially when such crimes are committed by world-famous film producers.
