Layton, Utah Mar 4, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - Utah winters are notorious for heavy snowfall, frigid temperatures, and icy conditions that put significant stress on residential and commercial roofs. In response, Right Way Roofing, led by owners Chad and Alex Wilson, is helping Utah homeowners weather the storm by offering expert guidance on the best roofing materials for the region's harsh winter climate.

"Utah's snowfall is no joke," said Chad Wilson. "We've seen firsthand how snow accumulation and ice can wreak havoc on poorly maintained or low-quality roofs. That's why choosing the right materials and staying proactive with roof care is essential."

Top Roofing Materials for Utah Winters

Right Way Roofing highlights a few standout roofing options that have performed exceptionally well in winter conditions:

- Metal Roofing: Known for its durability, snow-shedding ability, and resistance to ice buildup, metal roofing is an increasingly popular choice in Utah.
- Asphalt Shingles: High-quality, impact-resistant shingles with proper installation can effectively handle snow and ice.

- Slate Roofing: Although more premium, slate is incredibly durable and ideal for Utah's variable climate.

"We've seen time and again that proper installation and material choice make all the difference when it comes to roof performance during winter," added Alex Wilson.
