

That's So Mariana's Short Film "White & Black Canvas" Earns Three Nominations at LA Webfest, Including Best Performance

NOMINEE

“WHITE & BLACK CANVAS”

LAWEBFEST

16th Annual LA WEBFEST
Best Performance
Mariana Donnelly

2025

LAWEBFEST

16th Annual LA WEBFEST
Best Short

2025

LAWEBFEST

16th Annual LA WEBFEST
Best Director

2025

So Mariana, continues to solidify her place in the entertainment industry with yet another major achievement. Her short film White & Black Canvas, (directed by Luis Antonio Rodriguez) which she filmed and announced in 2024, has been officially nominated for three awards at the prestigious LA Webfest.

Among these nominations, one stands out as particularly special—Mariana herself has been nominated for Best Performance. This recognition highlights her exceptional acting skills and dedication to storytelling, proving once again that she is a force to be reckoned with both in front of and behind the camera.

Mariana took to social media to express her gratitude to the cast and crew who helped bring White & Black Canvas to life. “I’m beyond grateful for the opportunity to bring this story to life. Huge shoutout to the entire cast and crew--this wouldn’t have been possible without all the hard work and dedication everyone put in,” she shared.

She also confirmed that she will be attending this year’s LA Webfest red carpet award ceremony, where she will celebrate alongside other talented filmmakers and creators. This marks yet another milestone in her already impressive career, which spans music, fashion, and now award-nominated filmmaking.

From starring in major productions and collaborating with A-list artists to now earning recognition for her acting and filmmaking, Mariana Donnelly continues to prove that her talent knows no bounds. With White & Black Canvas making waves in the festival circuit, fans can’t wait to see what’s next for this rising star.

Media Contact

Cy Medina PR

@gmail.com

Source : That's So Mariana

See on IssueWire