New York City, New York Mar 23, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - HorrorWeb Productions just unleashed its award-winning horror film, The Black Quarry!

A twisted fusion of heavy metal and horror, the film follows the black metal band Drown the Priest as they enter an abandoned quarry to shoot a music video—only to find themselves trapped with something far more sinister than their own dark ambitions.

Texas horror creator and entrepreneur Corey Trahan delivers a brutal new vision with The Black Quarry, a film he both wrote and directed. Trahan, the force behind multiple horror-themed parks across Texas, also drives the sound of Austin's horror pop-punk band, The Immortalz, as its songwriter and producer. With a relentless career shaping dark, immersive worlds, Trahan is carving a path to claim the title of the next Master of Horror.

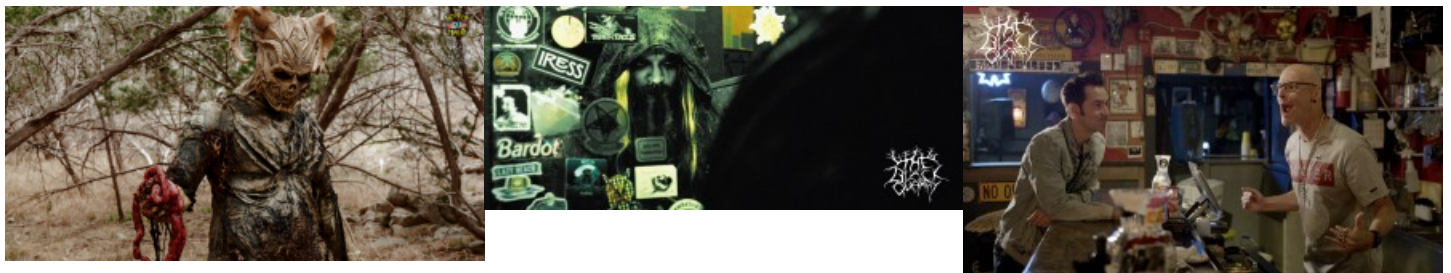

Winner of multiple festival awards, including Houston Horror Film Festival, The Thing in the Basement Horror Fest, L.A. Sci-Fi & Horror Festival, Ethereal Horror Fest, and Nightmare Fuel Film Festival LA, The Black Quarry has also been selected for major genre events such as Texas Frightmare Weekend, Austin Horror Film Festival, San Antonio Horror Film Festival, and Dead Northern Horror Film Festival.

The film is hosted by scream queen Sarah Webb (Scarrah Damsel of the Doomed), a well-known horror personality, musician, and host of Scarrah's Scream Theatre at Doc's Drive-In Theatre. The cast includes Shakira Reedus (Southside, Merry Switchmas), rising star and social media influencer, alongside internationally recognized comedians Jason Rouse and Jared Nathan, both known for their raw, boundary-pushing stand-up.

Directed by a talented team including Dr. Corey J. Trahan, Sarah Webb, Donavon Cavanaugh, John Bock, and Kayla Stojek, The Black Quarry promises a gripping descent into madness, blending supernatural terror with psychological horror.

Horror and metal fans alike will not want to miss this adrenaline-fueled nightmare. The Black Quarry is available now here.
