

Wolfgang Fitz, MD: A Leader in Orthopedic Surgery at Brigham and Women's Hospital

Harvard Medical School Assistant Professor Continues to Offer Exceptional Care in Orthopedic Medicine

New York City, New York Mar 11, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - Brigham and Women's Hospital proudly highlights the continued contributions of Wolfgang Fitz, MD, an esteemed orthopedic surgeon and assistant professor at Harvard Medical School. Dr. Fitz has established himself as a leader in the field of orthopedic surgery, specializing in hip reconstruction, knee arthroscopy, knee replacement, and tendon injuries. His clinical expertise and dedication to patient care have made him a valuable asset to the hospital and the community.

With extensive training and experience, Dr. Fitz completed his medical education at the University of Munich Medical School in Germany before embarking on a rigorous internship and residency at Bogenhausen Hospital. His commitment to advancing his skills led him to further training at the Hospital Barmherzigen Broth, culminating in a prestigious fellowship at Brigham and Women's Hospital from 1998 to 2000. Since then, he has remained a vital part of the Brigham and Women's team, providing exceptional orthopedic care to patients in need.

Dr. Fitz's clinical interests encompass a range of procedures that address complex orthopedic issues. His work in hip reconstruction and osteotomy is particularly notable, as he utilizes cutting-edge techniques to help patients regain mobility and alleviate pain. Furthermore, his expertise in knee arthroscopy and knee replacement surgery has transformed the lives of many patients suffering from debilitating knee conditions. Dr. Fitz also specializes in treating tendon injuries, employing both surgical and non-surgical approaches to ensure optimal recovery for his patients.

As an assistant professor at Harvard Medical School, Dr. Fitz is not only committed to patient care but also to educating the next generation of orthopedic surgeons. He actively participates in teaching medical students and residents, sharing his knowledge and experience to inspire future leaders in the field. His contributions to medical education are instrumental in fostering a culture of excellence at Harvard and beyond.

Brigham and Women's Hospital remains dedicated to providing top-tier orthopedic care, and Dr. Wolfgang Fitz exemplifies this commitment through his tireless work and patient-centered approach.
