

Le'An Insurance Services Presents at 2025 Global South Financiers Forum

Beijing, China Apr 15, 2025 (IssueWire.com) - Le'An Insurance Services Presents at 2025 Global South Financiers Forum, Unveiling Path to Belt and Road Health Ecosystem Synergy

March 20, 2025 — The 2025 Global South Financiers Forum, guided by the Brand Work Office of Xinhua News Agency and hosted by China Search Information Technology Co., Ltd. and Economic Information Daily, convened at the National Financial Information Center in Beijing. The forum brought together representatives from government agencies, financial institutions, academia, and industry leaders across over 30 countries and regions to explore innovative models for financial development in Global South nations.

During the forum's "Spotlighting Financial Best Practices" session, Hardy Wang (CEO) of Le'An Insurance Services (www.lean-insurance.com), delivered a speech titled "A New Paradigm for Global South Finance: Unlocking the Symbiotic Code for a Healthy Belt and Road Initiative Ecosystem." Her address outlined a synergistic "finance + health" development pathway, offering fresh insights to bolster Chinese enterprises' global expansion and advance sustainable growth in emerging markets.

From Economic Symbiosis to Health Prosperity: Redefining Development Logic for the Global South

The Global South now accounts for over 40% of the world economy, while trade between China and Belt and Road Initiative partner countries has surged to RMB 22.1 trillion. Against this backdrop, cross-border health security demands are intensifying. Hardy Wang highlighted the stark contrast between Southeast Asia's youthful demographics and its uneven distribution of medical resources, stressing the need for innovative financial tools to build a "prevention-coverage-service" ecosystem. "A robust health ecosystem should not be a mere appendage to economic development, but a core infrastructure for regional prosperity," she emphasized. Le'An is advancing equitable access to healthcare through tailored insurance solutions integrated with digital technologies.

Dual Engines of Tech Empowerment and Risk Governance

Addressing challenges such as frequent natural disasters and high agricultural risk exposure in Southeast Asia, Le'An underscored the combined value of “digital infrastructure + insurance mechanisms.” For instance, 5G-enabled smart healthcare platforms enhance grassroots medical accessibility, while dynamic risk assessment models support climate-resilient insurance systems. The company cited its Southeast Asia telemedicine project as a case study in cross-regional sharing of medical resources through technology.

Sustainable Ecosystem Building: Balancing Localization and Globalization

The speech also explored how financial services must align with local needs in Southeast Asia’s multicultural context. “Regional data-sharing platforms + customized health management” model ensures compliant cross-border medical data flows while precisely aligning with each nation’s health security priorities. This approach offers a blueprint for resolving tensions between globalization and localization in emerging markets.
