

AlphaBoost Acquires American Science Labs, Strengthens Position in Peptide Research and Wellness Market

Combining innovative research with trusted industry expertise, this strategic merger expands AlphaBoost's capabilities to deliver high-quality peptide solutions across clinical, research, and wellness markets.

Sterling, Virginia May 17, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - AlphaBoost, a Virginia-based leader in peptide therapy, research-grade compounds, and men's wellness solutions, has officially completed the acquisition of American Science Labs, a trusted U.S. supplier of high-quality research peptides.

This strategic move enhances AlphaBoost's product development pipeline, expands its national distribution network, and strengthens its ability to serve both clinical and research-based customers with advanced peptide formulations.

"After more than a decade serving researchers and innovators, I'm proud to see American Science Labs join a visionary team like AlphaBoost," said James Carter, Founder of American Science Labs. "They have the infrastructure and passion to take our legacy to new heights."

"This acquisition is more than growth—it's about synergy," said Tom Wong, Managing Partner of AlphaBoost. "American Science Labs has earned the trust of thousands of researchers. Together, we're positioned to dominate the next generation of biohacking, anti-aging, and performance science."

With this acquisition, AlphaBoost will integrate American Science Labs' core operations, client relationships, and proprietary research SKUs into its national offering. Customers will continue to receive uninterrupted access to the same products, now backed by AlphaBoost's upgraded fulfillment systems, branding, and clinical partnerships.
