Supers On Demand was founded to address this critical need by offering a modern, flexible staffing solution tailored to the fast-paced demands of the construction world.

Early Beginnings

The concept behind Supers On Demand originated during the 2009 recession, when Christopher Birli began connecting experienced superintendents with contractors struggling to keep projects moving amid workforce shortages. What began as an informal effort to help colleagues quickly evolved into a proven model for scalable staffing built on speed, trust, and performance.

“Construction projects can’t afford delays, especially when it comes to leadership in the field,” says Birli. “We created Supers On Demand to give contractors instant access to top-tier superintendents who are ready to step in and lead projects with confidence.”

Reliable Talent

What sets Supers On Demand apart is its ability to deliver vetted, experienced superintendents quickly—without sacrificing quality. Each professional in the company’s growing network is carefully evaluated for both technical expertise and leadership skills. This ensures contractors aren’t just hiring a worker, but a field leader capable of keeping complex projects on schedule and under budget.

From retail and hospitality builds to office fit-outs and large commercial developments, Supers On Demand has provided essential site leadership across a wide range of industries. With over 100 professionals placed and more than 750 successful projects completed, the company continues to be a trusted partner for general contractors seeking scalable workforce solutions.
