

Dr. Andrew Notarianni, Assistant Professor of Anesthesiology at Yale University

Leading Expert in Cardiac Anesthesia Enhances Patient Safety

New York City, New York May 9, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - Yale University School of Medicine is pleased to announce the appointment of Dr. Andrew Notarianni as Assistant Professor of Anesthesiology. In this pivotal role, Dr. Notarianni will also serve as the Fellowship Director for Adult Cardiothoracic Anesthesiology and as the Director for Quality and Safety within the Division of Cardiac Anesthesiology. His expertise is expected to significantly advance the quality of patient care and education in the rapidly evolving field of anesthesiology.

Dr. Notarianni brings a wealth of knowledge and experience to his new role. He earned his Doctor of Medicine from Georgetown University and completed his residency in Anesthesiology from 2012 to 2016. Following his residency, he further honed his skills through fellowships in Critical Care Anesthesiology and Adult Cardiothoracic Anesthesiology, completing these in 2017 and 2018, respectively. His commitment to excellence in patient care is underscored by his board certifications in Anesthesiology, Critical Care Medicine, and Adult Cardiac Anesthesiology.

As a skilled anesthesiologist based in New Haven, CT, Dr. Notarianni specializes in ensuring the safety of patients undergoing surgical procedures. His focus areas include general anesthesia, sedation, and regional anesthesia. Additionally, he plays a vital role in postoperative pain management, making him an invaluable asset to both his patients and the medical community.

In his capacity as Director for Quality and Safety, Dr. Notarianni will be instrumental in implementing practices that prioritize patient safety and enhance the quality of cardiac anesthesia services. His leadership will help set new standards in the field and ensure that patients receive the highest level of care before, during, and after their surgical procedures.

Dr. Notarianni's academic contributions extend beyond clinical practice. He is dedicated to shaping the next generation of anesthesiologists through his leadership of the Adult Cardiothoracic Anesthesiology Fellowship program. As Program Director, he will oversee the training of future specialists, ensuring they are equipped with the knowledge and skills necessary to excel in this challenging field.

His commitment to education and professional development is reflected in his extensive involvement with various professional societies. He holds memberships in the American Society of Anesthesiologists, Society of Cardiovascular Anesthesiologists, and the American Society of Echocardiography, among others. His contributions to these organizations, including participation in committees focused on cardiovascular and thoracic anesthesia, further demonstrate his dedication to advancing the field.

In recognition of his outstanding contributions to anesthesiology, Dr. Notarianni was named a Fellow of the American Society of Anesthesiologists in 2023. This prestigious honor reflects his commitment to excellence and leadership in the field.

Outside of his professional commitments, Dr. Notarianni enjoys hiking, skiing, and playing ice hockey, embracing an active lifestyle that complements his work in medicine.
