

Dynamic Duo Launches Uplifting Kids' Series Blending Careers, Wellness, and Representation

Mike and Barbara Gammage introduce The Little Careers Universe, a children's literary collection designed to inspire purpose, confidence, and curiosity through storytelling and family-focused learning.

Greensboro, North Carolina May 5, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - Mike Writes for Kids, LLC proudly announces the launch of The Little Careers Universe, a Reader's Favorite children's book series and educational brand created by husband-and-wife team Mike and Barbara Gammage. Through vibrant storytelling and wellness-focused programming, the Gammages are redefining how children explore careers, build character, and discover purpose.

At the heart of The Little Careers Universe is the Dreamlighters series—an imaginative collection of award-winning picture books that follow a group of kids as they journey into exciting professions like astronauts, firefighters, and more. Each story is designed to spark early interest in real-world careers while promoting literacy, representation, and family values.

“Our goal is to help kids see themselves in every page—bold, capable, and full of potential,” said Mike Gammage Sr., co-founder and author. “We’re combining education and imagination to open doors for children everywhere.”

Together, the Gammages have also developed family-friendly workshops that support children’s self-expression, safety, and healthy habits—bringing their stories to life in practical and empowering ways.

With a growing catalog of books, upcoming partnerships, and a strong commitment to community, Mike and Barbara Gammage are on a mission to help families and educators raise the next generation of confident, curious, and career-minded kids.
