

Equavix Invests in HaloBit, Empowers AI Contract Trading

New York City, New York May 18, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - Equavix, a global leader in structured capital investment, has officially announced its strategic investment in the digital asset trading platform HaloBit. This partnership marks the beginning of a deep collaboration between the two parties, aimed at jointly promoting an AI-driven quantitative contract signal system. The initiative is designed to empower Equavix's high-net-worth clients and global crypto traders to benefit from a new model of stable returns and intelligent risk control.

HaloBit is a rapidly rising next-generation digital asset exchange. Built on the principles of security, compliance, and AI innovation, the platform offers a wide range of services, including spot trading, derivatives, and intelligent copy trading. In particular, its AI-generated real-time strategy signals for contract trading have been widely embraced by users.

Under this partnership, Equavix will grant its global members access to HaloBit's AI signal system for contract trading. With three high-quality trading signals pushed daily, users can simply copy and follow the strategies without the need for complex technical analysis, capturing reliable daily profits. The system integrates real-time market data with machine learning algorithms, achieving optimal entry timing and dynamic risk management—trading powered by data, profit driven by strategy.

A spokesperson from Equavix's strategy team commented:

"What we value most about HaloBit is not only its technical strength and global operating capacity, but also its long-term vision in advancing intelligent trading within a compliant framework. We firmly believe that AI + risk models are the next major gateway for smart crypto trading."

Looking ahead, the two companies plan to expand their collaboration across data sharing, user strategy feedback, and portfolio management tools, jointly building a more efficient and resilient digital trading ecosystem. HaloBit will also offer exclusive signal access, custom strategy permissions, and VIP service channels to Equavix clients—creating a closed-loop experience from capital to signal, from action to results.
