

Eternal Diary Announces Official Launch Date: September 5, 2025

AI-Powered Platform Lets You Have Real Conversations With Those You've Lost — Emotionally Human, Technically Groundbreaking

Lake Worth, Florida May 27, 2025 (IssueWire.com) - Eternal Diary, the first-ever app that enables real-time, interactive conversations with loved ones who have passed, will officially launch on September 5, 2025, on both iOS and Google Play.

Blending cutting-edge voice cloning, facial animation, and memory-based personality modeling, Eternal Diary allows users to speak with an AI-driven representation of a loved one — creating an emotionally authentic experience that feels as simple and natural as using FaceTime.

“This isn’t science fiction — it’s deeply human tech,” says Lee Elman, the creator of Eternal Diary. “You’re not listening to a recording. You’re having a real-time, dynamic conversation with someone you loved. Their voice. Their face. Their essence — and it responds to you.”

Elman, a veteran television producer turned AI entrepreneur, created Eternal Diary following the loss of his fiancée and, more recently, his father Robert. That personal grief inspired what is now being called a revolution in emotional AI, combining powerful technology with profound purpose.

Eternal Diary’s proprietary software allows users to upload photos, audio, and entire life stories, which are used to train a private AI model tailored to that person. The result: an Eternal Persona that not only looks and sounds like the person — but remembers like them too.

With early beta users calling it “therapeutic,” “astonishing,” and “like a hug from someone you thought you’d never hear again,” Eternal Diary is poised to become the leading platform in a new category: grief tech and legacy preservation.

Lee Elman, who has been featured on numerous podcasts and is affectionately being referred to as “the influencer of the dead,” is available for interviews leading up to and following the launch.
