

HAZWOPER OSHA Training Launches NYC SST Trainings

NYC Safety Site Training ensures construction and demolition workers meet Local Law 196 of 2017, requiring specific training hours and SST cards to improve safety standards on New York job sites.

Los Angeles, California May 16, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - In response to New York City's safety training requirements for construction workers and supervisors, HAZWOPER OSHA Training, LLC is proud to announce the launch of its comprehensive NYC Site Safety Training \(SST\) program. In accordance with Local Law 196, this training is required of all employees working on major NYC job sites to fulfil the 40-hour SST requirement.

This training is designed to assist construction workers stay compliant with the New York City Department of Buildings (NYC DOB) regulations. It includes Fall Prevention and Drug and Alcohol Awareness, two key components that aim to reduce jobsite accidents and create safer work environments.

The SST Work Site Safety Training Courses are specifically designed for workers in Manhattan, Brooklyn, Queens, The Bronx, and Staten Island. According to NYC DOB regulations, this training is required for workers on job sites where a Construction Superintendent, Site Safety Manager, Site Safety Coordinator, or Concrete Safety Manager is mandated. The program is ideal for:

- New construction workers who need both OSHA and SST training
- Workers whose OSHA 30-hour training is over 5 years old
- Anyone seeking to meet NYC DOB SST card requirements

With a user-friendly learning platform, trainees can access the course from any device and learn at their own pace. The program includes interactive content, video modules, quizzes, and a final exam—culminating in a valid SST card upon successful completion.

Key training topics include:

- Site safety training according to the NYC DOB for employees Fall Prevention: Recognize, avoid, and control fall hazards
- Drug and Alcohol Awareness: Understand substance abuse risks and prevention strategies

HAZWOPER OSHA Training is committed to supporting workers' safety and helping companies stay compliant with city safety mandates.
