

Latronda Davis, MPH, RN, BSN, Leads with Purpose as a Public Health Advocate and Author

Atlanta-Based Nurse Program Manager Champions Community Health and Empowers Others Through Her Work and Writing

New York City, New York May 19, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - Latronda Davis, Nurse Program Manager at the Georgia Department of Public Health, is gaining recognition for her multifaceted impact in healthcare, public service, and education. With a deep commitment to improving community well-being, Davis balances her leadership role with advocacy, mentorship, and authorship, serving as a powerful voice for both patients and professionals across Georgia.

A proud alumna of the Nell Hodgson Woodruff School of Nursing at Emory University, Davis earned her Bachelor of Science in Nursing after completing her Master of Public Health at Morehouse School of Medicine. She also holds a Bachelor of Science in Healthcare Management from Albany State University. Her career blends clinical insight with strategic health management, allowing her to shape policy and promote wellness across diverse populations. In her current role, she leads the design and implementation of health programs aimed at addressing systemic challenges and reducing health disparities.

Beyond her professional achievements, Davis is also the author of The Hiddenurse®, a book that sheds light on the unseen and underappreciated work of nurses, especially those serving behind the scenes in public health. She serves on the Emory Nurse Alumni Board as Chair of the Engagement Committee, is a National Healthy Heart Ambassador, and a Lifestyle Coach for the National Diabetes Prevention Program—demonstrating her deep commitment to improving public health, lifelong learning, advocacy, and community engagement.

Latronda Davis credits her success to her faith in God and the steadfast support of her parents, whose encouragement has carried her through every chapter of her journey. Whether she's shaping public health initiatives or inspiring others through her writing, Davis continues to lead with compassion, purpose, and unwavering dedication to those she serves.

Learn more about Latronda Davis, MPH, RN, BSN: <https://todaysnurse.org/nurse/4151227>

Media Contact

TodaysNurse

@todaysnurse.com

Source : Latronda Davis

See on IssueWire