Cleveland, Ohio May 6, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - Tarvona Releases the World's First Adaptive Soul Album:

Bruised and Beautiful – The Listening Room

Presented by Jerailian House

In a visionary fusion of music, technology, and emotion, Tarvona — the creative soul group led by songwriter and producer Australia Lawrence — unveils Bruised and Beautiful – The Listening Room, the world's first adaptive soul album designed to respond to the listener's emotional state.

This groundbreaking experience invites users into a digital sanctuary where they choose how they feel — Reflective, Healing, or Empowered — and the music dynamically responds.

More than a playlist, the Listening Room is a fully installable mobile app where original soul tracks shift based on selected moods. Each listening session offers a new experience — cycling emotionally curated vocals, visuals, and ambient environments.

“This isn't just music. It's soul, shaped by emotion,” the team at Tarvona shares. “We wanted to create a space where the listener feels seen — where the music listens back.”

What Makes It a First:

- Adaptive listening has rarely been applied to vocally-led music
- While adaptive music has emerged in tech or ambient spaces, Tarvona is the first to deliver adaptive, emotionally responsive, vocally-led music across soul, jazz, and poetic genres — marking a historic innovation in independent music
- Each track is thoughtfully curated to reflect phases of emotional restoration — from reflection, to healing, to personal empowerment

Presented by Jerailian House, a boutique creative label under Larencielle Productions, Bruised and Beautiful – The Listening Room is the first in a series of immersive, emotionally adaptive music releases. Listeners can expect future “Listening Lab” editions featuring themed collections, collaborative artists, and interactive soundscapes.
