

IL Developer Tedora Brown Ditches Dems for GOP Congressional Bid

Professional Multi-Millionaire of Illinois rolls up her Architectual Plans in Developing New Construction Subdivisions to Announce Congressional Run as Republican Canidate developer and a prominent voice in community empowerment, is expected to formally announce her candidacy for the U.S. House of Representatives in Illinois' 11th Congressional District. In a significant move, Brown also confirmed her decision to leave the Democratic Party and seek the Republican nomination, signaling a powerful shift designed to bring her proven leadership and fresh perspective to Washington.

"Enough is enough. I have made up my mind: we have no other choice but to take our seat back," stated Tedora Brown. "For over a decade, Democratic Congressman Bill Foster has been complacent in Congress, and that stops now. I vow to protect, defend, and provide for the people of this district."

Brown, a dynamic African American woman entrepreneur, is the President of Scotland Development Corporation, overseeing a diverse portfolio of successful ventures. She is also the visionary Founder of Women in Construction Corporation of Illinois, a groundbreaking initiative dedicated to empowering women in trades and real estate development. Her commitment to second chances is exemplified by Tedora M. Brown Enterprises, LTD., a certified staffing agency that provides vital opportunities for individuals seeking a fresh start. Furthermore, her philanthropic efforts through The Dramon World Foundation actively address critical educational, health, and heart-related needs within urban communities.

"My journey in real estate and business has always been about building: building homes, building opportunities, and building up communities from the ground up," Brown added. "I've seen firsthand what works and what doesn't, and it's become clear to me that the path to true prosperity and freedom for Illinois families aligns more closely with Republican principles of individual liberty, fiscal responsibility, and local control. This isn't just a political change for me; it's a natural evolution of my commitment to effective solutions and real impact."

Tedora Brown's campaign will focus on issues critical to the 11th District, including fostering economic growth, ensuring public safety, advocating for parental rights in education, and promoting policies that empower small businesses and families. Her candidacy as an African American Republican woman highlights a growing and impactful movement within the party, bringing diverse perspectives and a strong emphasis on community-driven solutions to the forefront.

"I believe in a government that empowers its citizens, rather than controlling them. I believe in lower taxes, less regulation, and policies that encourage innovation and opportunity for everyone," Te-dora Brown stated. "I am ready to fight for the future of Illinois' 11th Congressional District and contribute to building a stronger, more prosperous America."
