

Mentutor Launches Smart Mentorship Platform to Bridge the Gap Between Learning and Career Growth

New AI-powered platform by Mentutor enables students and professionals to connect with mentors globally and achieve personalized career development.

Toronto, Ontario Jun 22, 2025 (IssueWire.com) - Mentutor, a privately held Canadian company based in Toronto, has officially launched its innovative online mentorship platform aimed at transforming the way students and professionals approach learning and career development. The platform leverages AI and smart matching technology to connect mentees with mentors who provide personalized guidance across various fields including tech, business, healthcare, and more.

Mentutor's mission is to empower learners and young professionals by providing them with access to real-world expertise, guidance, and support. By simplifying the process of finding and managing mentorships, the platform encourages long-term learning relationships that yield measurable personal and professional growth.

Designed for universities, corporations, and individuals, Mentutor helps users:

- Match with the right mentors using intelligent algorithms
- Track goals and mentorship progress
- Schedule sessions and access resources
- Improve skills with ongoing support

Mentutor is available now and accessible globally at <https://www.mentutor.io>. The company invites mentors and organizations to join the movement and reshape how we learn and grow in today's digital world.
