Queen Creek, Arizona Jun 17, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - My Obgyne, a Hera Women's Health Center of Excellence, is proud to welcome Yoonie Lee, CNM, WHNP-BC, to its growing team of dedicated women's health professionals. With more than a decade of clinical nursing experience and advanced training in midwifery and women's health, Yoonie brings a comprehensive, inclusive approach to patient care that reflects the values at the heart of the My Obgyne practice.

Yoonie joins the San Tan Valley ObGyn at a time of continued growth and rising demand for personalized, evidence-based women's healthcare. Her services will include routine gynecologic care, pregnancy and postpartum support, family planning, and menopause management.

Across the San Tan Valley region, women are seeking care that is not only medically advanced but also grounded in trust, respect, and shared decision-making. As a Certified Nurse Midwife and Women's Health Nurse Practitioner, Yoonie offers both the clinical expertise and the relational insight needed to guide patients through every stage of life.

Her care model prioritizes clear communication, safety, and cultural responsiveness—making her an ideal fit for the My Obgyne mission of delivering whole-person care to women across generations.

"We are excited to welcome Yoonie Lee to the My Obgyne team," said Dr. Vidalia Butler-Poku, Medical Director. "She brings a wealth of experience and a thoughtful, patient-centered approach that aligns perfectly with our values. Her presence strengthens our ability to meet the needs of the women we serve—whether they are navigating adolescence, planning a pregnancy, or seeking support through menopause."

Yoonie began her nursing career in progressive care and oncology before focusing on labor and delivery, a transition that led her to pursue advanced certification in midwifery and women's health. She holds degrees from Arizona State University and Georgetown University and is board-certified by the American Midwifery Certification Board and the National Certification Corporation.

She is fluent in English and proficient in Korean and is passionate about creating a supportive space where patients feel empowered and informed. Yoonie's services will support My Obgyne's full spectrum of offerings, from preventive care and reproductive health to pregnancy and postpartum services.

My Obgyne has built its reputation on a commitment to high-quality, personalized women's healthcare. As part of the Hera Women's Health network, the practice continues to evolve in step with the needs of the community it serves.

Yoonie's addition represents a continued investment in expanding access to compassionate, coordinated care. Her focus on education, communication, and patient dignity will help My Obgyne continue to raise the standard of care across the region.

Yoonie Lee is now accepting new patients at My Obgyne in San Tan Valley. To schedule an appointment or learn more about the practice's services, visit www.myobgyne.com or call (480) 987-5500.
