

Boom & Bucket Forum Hits 2,500 Posts, Cementing Its Role as a Go-To Hub for Heavy Equipment Pros

The fast-growing forum connects equipment operators, buyers, and industry experts in real-time discussions on machinery, job site tips, tech, and more.

Austin, Texas Jul 9, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - Boom & Bucket, the leading online marketplace for buying and selling heavy equipment, is proud to announce a major milestone: the Boom & Bucket Forum (available at forums.boomandbucket.com) has officially surpassed 2,500 posts since its launch in 2024.

Launched to fill a growing gap in the construction and heavy equipment community, the Boom & Bucket Forum has quickly become one of the most active and trusted online hubs for industry professionals. With active discussions across equipment types, job site best practices, emerging technology, career advice, and more, the forum hosts thousands of discussions that reflect the depth and diversity of the equipment world.

“We knew there was a lack of centralized, high-quality online conversation around heavy equipment, and we wanted to change that,” said Ben Van Roekel, Marketplace Quality Team Lead at Boom & Bucket. “Crossing the 2,500 post mark proves how strong the demand for this kind of community really is.”

Unlike generic message boards, the Boom & Bucket Forum is directly supported by the Boom & Bucket team - industry experts in equipment operations, inspections, buying, financing, maintenance, and logistics. Members regularly benefit from real-time engagement with experts who actively monitor and contribute to discussions.

From troubleshooting machinery issues to navigating complex financing questions, the forum's diverse range of topics provides both casual operators and seasoned contractors with a trustworthy peer-to-peer knowledge base - and it's entirely free.

Built for the Long Haul. Growing by the Day

The forum's visibility has surged through organic search, ranking prominently for many industry-specific queries. Its growing popularity reflects a broader shift in how professionals seek information and build connections in the digital age.

Boom & Bucket plans to continue to invest in the platform, with plans to introduce enhanced features and community tools later this year.
