corporate gifting, Gharano weaves stories around each occasion, encouraging connections through craftsmanship and purpose, thereby raising the bar of conscious gifting internationally.

A New Standard for Thoughtful Gifting

Inspired by the vision of spread-access Indian handicrafts, Gharano emerged from the great lineage of Bubber Handicrafts House, founded by Mr. Mahesh Bubber. More than thirty years ago, while wandering through Jaipur's fascinating markets near Albert Hall Museum, Mahesh realized that fine Indian art was inaccessible to the locals, as most of it was priced too highly. This gave birth to Bubber Handicrafts in the late seventies with a promise of bringing Indian artistry within the common person's reach. Now entering the realm of digitalization, Gharano is led by Priyansh Bubber, Director at Bubber Handicrafts Inc. and author of Decoding Gifting Potentials, enacting the vision of transforming gifting into an art that binds hearts and pays tribute to India's cultural wealth.

From Ganpati Sculptures during festivals for gifting, to signature Brass Pooja Thalīs and Luxury Elephant Urli for weddings and housewarmings, each hamper is meant to set the stage for conversations, fine the living, and enrich memories. Giving due attention to sustainability and supporting local artisans, Gharano ensures that every gifted item speaks of a dual commitment—one to culture and preservation and the other to today's consumer values.

"This is not gifting but fostering meaningful connections with presents that embody the artistic soul of India," said Priyansh Bubber. "We are revolutionizing the industry by giving a gift of beauty and purpose that is infused with emotion: each hamper is an embrace in the greatest art form."
