Smyrna, Georgia Jul 11, 2025 (IssueWire.com) - Gride Tech, a community-focused startup, has launched a powerful new crowdfunding campaign on Indiegogo to expand its all-in-one app that combines ride-hailing, food delivery, and grocery shopping. Designed specifically for underserved neighborhoods across the United States, Gride Tech offers a fair, inclusive, and affordable alternative to traditional delivery and mobility apps.

In many U.S. cities, entire communities are left without reliable access to rides, meals, or groceries. Gride Tech was created to serve these neighborhoods where surge pricing, limited availability, and low driver pay have become the norm. The app features no hidden fees, ensures drivers earn 70% of each transaction, and includes important safety features such as SOS support and women-only ride options.

Through this Indiegogo campaign, Gride Tech is raising $5 million to expand into ten cities, including key locations for the upcoming 2026 FIFA World Cup. Funds will be used to onboard 5,000+ local drivers, partner with 1,000+ small businesses, and roll out platform upgrades like real-time routing, loyalty programs, and eco-conscious delivery options.

Gride Tech is more than an app it's a movement. By building technology that puts people first, the platform aims to create economic opportunity, strengthen small businesses, and bring essential services to families who need them most. The team behind Gride Tech is calling on changemakers, community builders, and everyday supporters to help bring the mission to life.
