

New Children's Book Jade's Brave Wing Raises Awareness of Brachial Plexus Birth Injury with Gentle Storytelling

New rhymed picture book offers gentle introduction to brachial plexus birth injury, empowering children and supporting families through therapy, imagination, and small victories.

Brantford, Ontario Aug 4, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - Maureen Adedeji, a Nigerian-Canadian writer and mother, has just released her debut children's book, Jade's Brave Wing, available worldwide. Inspired by true events, the rhymed picture book addresses brachial plexus birth injury (BPBI) or Erb's palsy, a condition affecting 1 to 3 out of every 1,000 births, which can lead to weakness or paralysis in a newborn's arm.

The story follows Jade, a bright young girl born with a quiet, unmoving arm. Through therapy and her family's support, she discovers that healing doesn't always mean returning to what was, but instead growing stronger through adaptation and celebrating small victories.

Adedeji created the book after her own family's journey with BPBI, hoping to provide other families and caregivers with a compassionate resource. The book blends gentle verse and 3D illustrations to introduce children to the concepts of difference, therapy, resilience, and quiet courage, all without fear or stigma.

"Jade's Brave Wing is for every child who begins life with a difference," Adedeji explains in the author's note. "It's for parents navigating unexpected diagnoses and for caregivers learning that healing looks like adaptation, courage, and growth — not always perfection."

The book also provides an accessible tool for pediatric therapists and educators to introduce complex medical topics in a compassionate and age-appropriate manner. Its rhymed structure supports early literacy, while the imagery of wings offers a universal metaphor for progress and self-acceptance.

Available Now

Jade's Brave Wing is available in eBook and paperback formats globally via Amazon, Barnes & Noble, and many more book retailers worldwide.

About the Author

Maureen Adedeji is a global marketing leader and mother of two. She draws on personal experience and deep faith to create stories that bridge healing and hope. For interviews, bulk orders, signed copies, or school partnerships, please contact the author.

Media Contact

Maureen Adedeji

@brandhandler.ca

Source : Author, Maureen Adedeji

See on IssueWire