

Vince Schuld Announces 'Song to the Siren' Cover and Continues Trance-Infused Nature Series

Veteran trance producer Vince Schuld delivers emotional storytelling mixed with innovative outdoor performances.

Phoenix, Arizona Jul 23, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - Trance music producer Vince Schuld is set to release his cover of "Song to the Siren," originally by Tim Buckley and repopularized by Scooter two decades ago. This single continues his decade-long dedication to crafting emotionally charged trance music that connects with listeners through melodic storytelling.

For over ten years, Vince Schuld has built a reputation in the trance community for music that captures raw emotion and energy. "Trance is a feeling rooted in emotion," Vince says. "It's how I express myself through melodies that tell a story. The genre has a loyal fanbase, and I'm committed to keeping that spirit alive." His tracks, inspired by trance pioneers like Paul van Dyk, Aly & Fila, and Solarstone, blend driving beats with vibrant melodies.

Vince Schuld's diverse background shapes his unique sound. A former Marine, band vocalist, paranormal investigator, truck driver, and video game enthusiast, he draws from a wide range of experiences to infuse his music with personal and universal themes. During his time as a truck driver, Vince would create music from the back of his semi-truck, crafting tracks while parked in different parts of the country. Vince's nomadic approach to music production allowed him to capture the essence of the landscape in his sound, creating a truly authentic connection between his travels and his art. This eclectic perspective allows him to craft tracks that feel authentic and relatable, connecting with listeners on a deep level.

Alongside the new single, Vince Schuld is expanding his series of DJ sets performed in natural settings. These performances, set against scenic backdrops like forests and lakes, offer fans a fresh way to experience trance, blending music with nature's tranquility. He promotes these efforts on his social media pages, engaging directly with his growing audience.

Vince maintains creative control by designing his album artwork using self-taken photographs, adding a personal touch to his releases. He recently launched Ghosts, UFOs, and Mushrooms, a music label named after his passions for the supernatural, extraterrestrial, and nature. The label serves as a platform for his solo work and his band, The Everything, showcasing his versatility. Vince's commitment to authenticity extends to his live performances, where he aims to evoke the same emotional intensity found in his studio productions.

"I'm not trying to get famous," Vince adds. "I fully realize I'm in my 40s and playing weird music that was popular 25 years ago." His long-time connection to trance's emotional core and innovative presentations continues to drive his evolving career, making him appreciate the genre at its deepest level.

Vince Schuld's cover of "Song to the Siren" will be available on all major streaming platforms, including Spotify, where you can listen to more of his music.
