

PositiveSingles Separates Dating and Community Modes on iOS App

Two Distinct Modes Empower Members' Choice and Strengthen Community Belonging

Vaughan, Ontario Aug 27, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - PositiveSingles®, the world's first and largest dating platform for people living with sexually transmitted infections (STIs), has been dedicated to building a supportive community for over twenty years. This August, the platform announced an update to its iOS app that officially separates its Dating and Community modes, enabling members to seamlessly switch between connecting romantically and engaging in supportive community discussions.

The iOS app now offers two distinct modes accessible from the top-left menu on the main screen:

- Dating Mode: Offers a dating-focused environment where members can create profiles, use the Flame feature to find potential matches, and communicate via private messaging and photo sharing.
- Community Mode: Offers a supportive space where members can engage through real-time conversations, blogs, polls, and educational resources, fostering meaningful connections and a sense of belonging.

This clear distinction allows members to switch between modes according to their individual needs. Without such separation, members pursuing peer support or educational resources might inadvertently encounter dating-focused interactions, which do not align with their goals. The new update addresses this issue, ensuring that members can choose connections that best suit their needs within separate spaces.

Moreover, the new Community mode retains the live chatroom functionality. It enables members to exchange support and share experiences through real-time, direct conversations.

"PositiveSingles is dedicated to building a true community," said Micheal C., Product Manager. "By separating Community and Dating modes, members can precisely find the connections they are looking for, whether it's a supportive friendship or a romantic relationship."

This update underscores PositiveSingles' dual function as a community and a dating platform. It provides members with clear options for interaction, allowing them to concentrate on the connections that best meet their needs.
