

PSD within Police Scotland Failed to Tackle Institutional Racism with Transparency and Equality

Scottish Borders, United Kingdom Oct 8, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - In a world where crime and injustice are weighing more than integrity, Author and filmmaker Errol Baptiste is actively fighting to keep impartiality and equality alive. He has released a new video exploring themes of equality, justice, and transparency within modern policing. Through Baptiste's personal commentary and research insights, the video encourages constructive dialogue about community trust and accountability. The filmmaker has presented his own knowledge and unique view regarding the subject. Baptiste voiced that lasting reform comes through only transparency and an open dialogue between the public and the police. According to the renowned filmmaker and author, there must be lucidity in the reform process, where the police need to stay transparent regarding what they are doing and what the system represents.

Furthermore, the author also claims that reform can only last when there is an open conversation between the police and the general public. This is the work that aims to spark thoughtful discussion rather than division among the populace. The video, available on [YouTube link], invites audiences to reflect on how inclusive policies and honest communication can strengthen public confidence.
