

Conkrite Capital Declares Tana River “The Garden of Eden of Africa”

An unprecedented global recognition of longevity, resilience, and natural wonder

Toronto, Ontario Sep 9, 2025 (IssueWire.com) - After four years of extensive investigation and cultural study, Conkrite Capital and the House of Conkrite, guided by its intelligence body, formally declares Tana River as the “Garden of Eden of Africa.” This historic designation places Tana River at the forefront of global attention as a sanctuary of life, resilience, and timeless vitality.

A Land Beyond Ordinary

The Tana River ecosystem has long been whispered about by locals and scholars alike, a place where the soil is rich, the waters pulse with continuity, and communities thrive with a resilience unmatched anywhere in the region. Our investigation has revealed:

- Longevity & Vitality: we found elders living beyond 120 years, in silence and dignity, carried forward by generations. Unlike Asia where centenarians are widely known, here in Tana River these stories remain guarded and humble; until now.
- Avian Paradise: More than 300 recorded bird species inhabit this corridor, making it one of the most diverse ecosystems on the continent. From migratory storks to sacred kingfishers, the skies above Tana testify to an unbroken covenant of life.
- The River of Life: Stretching more than 1,000 kilometers, the Tana nourishes vast communities, wetlands, and farms, acting as the lifeblood of Kenya’s ecological balance. It is both a river and a timeline; carrying stories older than maps, older than nations.
- The People: Communities along the Tana have endured droughts, floods, and modern neglect, yet they rise with quiet dignity. Their resilience is evidence of a spiritual foundation that cannot be explained by economics or politics alone.

A Declaration of Global Significance

“This is not an ordinary land. Tana River carries within it the secret code of life, of balance, of endurance,” said Nicolas W. Del Valle, CEO of Conkrite Capital. “We, the people of the House of Conkrite, declare to the world that: The Garden of Eden is not a myth, it is here, alive, and it is time humanity recognizes it, and its name is Tana River County, Kenya.”

This declaration is more than symbolism, it is a call to governments, universities, scientists, and humanity itself to see Tana River as a living laboratory, a sanctuary worth preserving, and a guidepost for the future of civilization.

The Path Forward

Conkrite Capital is committing to:

- Establish the Organic City of Tana River, a model community built on dignity, ecology, and human merit.
- Launch the Tana Global Research Fellowship, inviting scientists, ecologists, and anthropologists to study the secrets of longevity, soil fertility, and biodiversity in the region.
- Partner with local leadership, including the Governor of Tana River, to ensure development protects and amplifies the natural Eden-like qualities of the land.

An Invitation to the World

As humanity wrestles with climate change, food insecurity, and cultural disintegration, Tana River offers a new axis of hope. It is a reminder that civilization can reset, not by abandoning Earth, but by rediscovering its sacred geographies.

Tana River is no longer just a county in Kenya. Today, it stands as the Garden of Eden of Africa - a declaration to the world that paradise was never lost, only waiting to be recognized.
