

From Nanny to Author: Taniqua Purdie Launches Kickstarter to Help Parents Unlock Kids' Learning Superpowers

Only 200 complete sets and 100 signed copies of each individual book will be available exclusively to Kickstarter supporters

Oakland, California Sep 19, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - What if storytime could unlock your child's unique superpower? That's the vision behind the Learning Superpower Series, an upcoming Kickstarter campaign by Taniqua Purdie, a professional nanny turned author and founder of Luxury Children's Books LLC.

This first run of durable board books — designed for ages 2–5 — is strictly limited:

- 200 complete 9-book sets, each one personally signed by the author.
- Only 100 signed copies of each individual character book, reserved exclusively for Kickstarter backers.

Once these are gone, they're gone. Families who join early will own the first signed editions of a series designed to change the way parents see learning.

"As a nanny, I watched children light up once their learning style was recognized," says Purdie. "These books are a tool for parents to discover that spark early — and turn it into confidence that lasts."

But this first edition is just the beginning. The pre-launch campaign is building momentum not only to bring these durable storytime companions to families, but also to fund the creation of the Luxury Keepsake Collection — a limited 10-book heirloom set with gold-stamped covers and something you've never seen before. This premium line will position children's literature as both an educational tool and a treasured family legacy.

 Families, educators, and early supporters are already signing up. With scarcity built into the very first run, the question is: will you be one of the few who owns the first signed editions?
